Franco Takes Charge as Big European Powers Watch Offensive Which May End Spanish Civil War

Italy Bitter

Italian War Veterans Turn in French Medals They Received for Military Service

Hendaye, France (at the Spanish frontier), Jan. 17 (AP)—Reinforced government and insurgent armies reformed their lines 35 miles west of Barcelona today for an apparently imminent battle on which may rest the fate of the government capital and the outcome of the Spanish civil war.

With their backs to the sea following the insurgent occupation of Tarragona over the weekend, the government forces were believed to have been increased to approximately 400,000 men by recent conscriptions.

Military observers estimated that insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco could increase his attacking forces to some 500,000 for the approaching conflict for possession of highways to Barcelona.

Franco himself took command of the drive on the capital as the big European powers watched the offensive which may end the two and a half year old civil war. He was at the head of the main column moving eastward along the Lerida-Barcelona highway toward Igualada, believed to be the northern end of the government's new lines.

Seven insurgent army corps numbering more than 300,000 men steadily have been pushing back government lines from the Segre and Ebro river valleys—now completely occupied by Franco's troops—since the start of the offensive December 22.

Spectacular advances by Franco in the past 35 days have carried the insurgent flag into Barcelona Province within 35 miles of the capital.

The insurgents, meanwhile, contended that the government's strategy aimed at loosening pressure on Barcelona by counter-attacking in southern Spain had failed.

Government reports stated, however, that the battle lines in Catalonia itself were becoming "stabilized."

The spearhead of the central insurgent divisions has reacted into Barcelona Province at Bellprat. Moroccan and veteran Navarrese fighters have been seen recently capturing territory on the coast below Tarragona.

Franco wheeled his heavy artillery into position to continue the advance along the main coastal highway from Tarragona toward Barcelona.

Government forces reformed lines to defend a network of highways fanning westward from Barcelona.

Work brigades feverishly fortified hills which command these roads. The battle believed impending will be waged for their possession.

Franco in Command

Generalissimo Franco took direct personal command of the swift insurgent advance toward Barcelona today as the Spanish war issue heated new fuel on the fire of embittered relations between France and Italy.

The insurgent chief, his armies in possession of Tarragona on the Mediterranean, headed the main insurgent column pushing down the Lerida-Barcelona highway against the Spanish government capital.

Travelers reaching the French frontier from Barcelona said the insurgent campaign was a full three weeks ahead of government expectations and that the city might fall within three weeks, a possibility which the capitals of Europe were watching closely.

Paris reports said the French government was considering anew whether to open her Pyrenees frontier so that material aid might be sent the Spanish Government.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet returned from Geneva to face increasing agitation for such a move to offset Italian troops and war materials being used in the insurgent offensive.

Italian newspapers published bitter attacks on France in response to French newspaper disparagement of Italy's army and navy. Italian war veterans started turning in the French medals they have received for military service.

Unusual Interest in Maneuvers
The intensified Spanish issue gave unusual interest to regular maneuvers of the British home fleet and the French Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets which came at the same time in Mediterranean and Atlantic waters closely involved in Spanish matters.

Britain's warships assembled today at Portland preparatory to a cruise in the Mediterranean, where Britons fear Germany might entrench herself to threaten

Ax Wielder Slays Girl

Sixteen-year-old Ruth Scott, (left) Milwaukee, Wis., high school student, was beaten to death and her widowed mother, Mrs. James Scott, (right) was severely slashed by an intruder wielding a hatchet. Police at Racine, Wis., held Ernest John Mahr, 24, and said he had admitted making the attacks during an attempted burglary.

Dewey Rounds Up Ring That Filched Subway Millions

Employees Are Suspected of Stealing 26,000,000 Nickels From New York's City-Owned Subway

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—A ring of employees suspected of stealing $1,300,000—or 26,000,000 nickels—from New York's city-owned subway was rounded up today by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey for questioning.

Dewey said the subway—largest municipally-operated utility in the world—had been systematically looted of approximately three percent of its gross receipts for five years by a group of 30 station agents and maintenance men.

The district attorney said further investigation might disclose far more than $1,300,000 had been stolen.

Three men—Henry J. Arosztein, 33, and Isadore Kadisov, station agents, and James J. McGovern, 28, a former maintenance man—were under arrest on charges of conspiracy to commit grand larceny and forgery. Twenty more were held for questioning and others were being sought.

A Dewey aide said that one of the men wanted fled the city after having banked $100,000 in the last few years on a petty subway employee's salary. He was quoted as having looted another member of the ring.

"I got a hundred grand salted away in safety deposit boxes. I'm getting out of here, and they'll never get me."

The daily take of the nickel chiselers, a spokesman for the district attorney's office said, often reached $1,500 a day.

Investigators said the scheme succeeded only through close and continual collusion between members of the ring who tapped fortunes at the turnstiles by tampering with the meters registering the number of fares.

It was worked this way, they said:

A dishonest station agent would phone the company that a turnstile was out of order. When the maintenance man arrived—ostensibly to repair it—he would turn back the registering device so that the actual number of nickels deposited, station agents altered their records to conform, pocketed the excess fares and later split with the maintenance man.

Mexico Expels Reporter

Correspondent Is Under Orders to Leave the Country by Tonight

Mexico City, Jan. 17 (AP)—Frank L. Kluckhohn, Mexico City correspondent for the New York Times, is under orders from the department of interior to leave the country by tonight.

The order to depart within 24 hours was given to him last night, making him the first newspaperman to be expelled from Mexico in recent years.

The government press department said it was displeased with his news dispatches on various occasions.

A request was made through diplomatic channels in Washington that Kluckhohn be given sufficient time to attend to personal affairs before leaving.

The New York Times in a page-one story following the Mexico City announcement said today that Kluckhohn in the past few months had been "subjected to a barrage of criticism not only from Mexican sources but also from certain so-called liberals in this country."

The paper said that about four months ago the representations "increased to such an extent that the New York Times, in pursuance of a policy of taking nothing for granted, sent an assistant managing editor to Mexico City to investigate Mr. Kluckhohn's work on the spot."

Would Close New York World's Fair Sundays

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The State Council of Churches met today to act on a resolution designed to keep the New York World's Fair closed on Sundays.

The council last night heard a report from its social action commission urging such action and decided to vote on it and other resolutions at today's session, probably late in the day.

Also included in the commission's report were resolutions which would:

Oppose legalization of lotteries in the state.

Oppose additional government arms expenditures.

Endorse local option bills to curtail the sale of liquor.

Food Merchants To Meet Tonight

Food merchants from Kingston and all the communities of Ulster county will gather at the Kingston municipal auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock in answer to a call for a mass meeting by the New York State Food Merchants' Association.

The main purpose of this meeting is to acquaint the food dealers with the provisions of the "Loss Leader Bill," which is to be introduced in the State Assembly and Senate this week.

Senator Joseph H. Esquivel of the Eighth district will introduce the bill in the Senate and Assemblyman George B. Parsons of Oneonta will sponsor it in the Assembly.

State Secretary John F. Murray, of the Food Merchants' Association, will explain the bill. William A. Philo of Schenectady, manager of the Buy-Rite Supply Co., and a state director, will be chairman of the meeting.

Last night a delegation of food dealers from Ulster county went to Albany in the interest of the bill. The delegation reported that there is a very strong sentiment at the capital in favor of this piece of legislation, which is designed to correct one of the worst evils of the retail trade.

Patriotism in Voting Booth

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Patriotism should begin in the voting booth, one New York legislator believes. Assemblyman Maurice Whitney, Republican, introduced a bill requiring that knobs of voting machines be painted red, white and blue.

Wicks Proposes 3-Platoon System For Police Forces

Albany, Jan. 17 (Special)—A bill designed to extend the three-platoon police system to all village police forces in the state, has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Republican, of Kingston.

The measure, which amends the original three-platoon act sponsored by Senator Wicks, also extends the present law's provisions for vacations to all village police forces, instead of limiting applicability of the law to forces having four or more men.

Senator Wicks is also the sponsor of a measure providing that village boards appoint village policemen pursuant to rules and regulations of the civil service law.

In the Assembly, Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, Republican, of Kingston, has introduced a measure amending the tax law, providing that if in certiorari proceedings to review taxes and assessments, any party offers in evidence a final Supreme Court order fixing the assessed valuation for the previous year, the court shall fix the assessment at the same amount as fixed in the previous final order, unless it appears that a change has occurred in the value of the property. The burden of establishing the change is to be on the party claiming the change.

Oppose Abandonment of "Little Red Schoolhouse"

Hotelmen Discuss Bringing Business Here During Fair

At the meeting of the Kingston Hotel and Restaurant Men's Association Monday afternoon in the Governor Clinton Hotel, attention was devoted to plans for bringing business to Kingston during the great World's Fair.

Featured speaker was William A. Fitzpatrick of Huling's Bar, newest member of the association, who for more than 10 years was an executive on the staff of the Empire Hotel in New York as an advertising expert.

Kingston, and its business men, according to the new owner of the bar, which he took over several months ago, from Mark Huling, should derive its share of profit from the great metropolitan extravaganza.

Quoting the World's Fair committee, Mr. Fitzpatrick said that 50,000 persons will travel through New York state daily, and gave the estimate of the state highway commission as 30,000, which although it is more conservative, indicates that communities along the great traffic arteries will get their share of transient business.

Merchants downtown and uptown and in the central portion of the city will be called together, Secretary John J. Egan, of the association, said and asked to help advertise this city so that it may share in the fair business.

The next meeting of the hotelmen and restaurateurs will be held on January 26 at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Starting time is 3 o'clock. A full attendance of members is requested.

Addressing the meeting, Mr. Fitzpatrick spoke as follows:

"Having been so closely aligned with the preparations in New York city and the forthcoming World's Fair I believe I am in a position to tell you gentlemen of the tremendous possibilities we have here in Kingston for attracting visitors into our city."

"For the past two years a very strong campaign has been propped among the banks throughout the country in an effort to establish World's Fair savings funds. The influence this has created throughout the country was definitely felt in New York city during the past summer when even vacations in New York city were curtailed in an effort to carry on the savings for the World's Fair."

"It is estimated by the World's Fair committee that 50,000 persons will journey throughout the state daily to and from the World's Fair. Our state highway commission, however, figures it more conservatively at 30,000 persons."

"It is very reasonable then to assume that people coming to the fair will be fortified with sufficient money to round out a real vacation while east. Assuming that it will take four days to see the fair completely it is logical that they will be interested in seeking other vacation interests throughout the state which is recognized as the most attractive for vacationists. There will be a tremendous percentage of these people coming to New York for the very first time and they will never miss the opportunity of seeing the rest of the state. After they leave the fair they will be anxious to see West Point, Fort Ticonderoga, Howe Caverns, Ausable Chasm, and other interests which mean they must pass through our city enroute."

"What then are we going to do to attract this vast traveling body? They will require food, hotel accommodations, wearing apparel, amusements and all the necessities in travel. They will have money to spend and the city that can be made most attractive must be the one to cash in on this golden opportunity and at the same time send these same people on their respective ways with that feeling

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—

Strong upstate opposition was manifested today toward any legislative attempt to force abandonment of "the little red schoolhouse."

Introduction of a bill for that purpose was delayed temporarily as a result, while the legislature's Republican leadership studied scores of protests against the proposal of state education officials that centralization of rural school districts now permissible, be made compulsory.

The opposition was revealed in party conferences slated to continue today while the Senate put confirmation of the appointment of Michael F. Walsh, of Brooklyn, as secretary of state, on its calendar.

Confirmation of Walsh, who will succeed Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader, was recommended unanimously by the Senate finance committee last night.

A 12-point legislative program was announced by the American Labor Party, whose legislative representation was cut from five assemblymen to one in the November election.

Development of new patronage difficulties for the Republican majority in both houses, centering chiefly about the $8,000 secretaryship to the assembly ways and means committee, now held by Charles Locke.

Introduction of a bill to broaden "home rule" powers of cities in consonance with the constitutional amendment voted last November.

The main patronage controversy was reported authoritatively to have resulted from the demand of Republican Assemblyman Abbot Low Moffat, chairman of the ways and means committee, for the right to name his own secretary.

Locke, a native of Essex county appointed by the late Assemblyman Fred L. Porter, has been offered a post with the Senate finance committee but is understood reliably to be seeking the $8,000 secretaryship to the Senate group, if he is to be transferred.

That position already has been assigned to Ormond R. Ritchie, of Nassau county, however.

The American Labor Party program was announced by Alex. Rose, the party's state executive secretary, who asserted the ALP's determination to "see enacted a New Deal program for the state of New York."

Two of the proposals have been introduced, one of which would create a division of civil liberties in the executive department "to provide machinery and personnel to investigate any breach of constitutional rights of free speech, free assembly and free press."

The second would provide a five-day week for state civil service employees, while other recommendations urge:

A ban on any so-called "run-away" employer who moves to low-wage areas to cut wage standards; creation of a state department of the consumer; regulations to prevent fraudulent advertising and sale of foods, drugs and cosmetics; and legislation to protect installment purchasers from "gyp installment houses and loan shark firms."

Under the "home rule" proposal Senator Frederick R. McDermott, Jr., and Assemblyman Macneil Mitchell, New York city Republicans, the legislature could pass special laws affecting cities only upon the request of the mayor and local legislative body.

The measure also would empower cities to repeal or supercede local laws passed by the legislature since 1923, except those relating to pensions, assessments and dismissals from civil service.

Behead Former Soldiers

Berlin, Jan. 17 (AP)—Two former soldiers, Heinz Koschman, 22, and Gerhard Kersand, 25, were beheaded today after having been sentenced to death by court martial for "high treason."

Frankfurter Nomination Confirmed By Senate; Seek Reduction In Relief Fund

He's Against Third Term

It seems that Senator Rush Holt (D-W. Va.) is not in favor of a third term for President Roosevelt. The senator from West Virginia is shown holding a sign which he said expressed his sentiments so thoroughly that he will introduce a resolution in the Senate opposing a third term. He announced his stand after receiving a chain postal card in Washington, D. C., which reads, "Ten million postcards will fill this third term talk. Mail postcards to the White House." The postcard is shown in his hand.

New Paltz Man Pleads Not Guilty to Scindle

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—Three of five men indicted for using the mails to defraud in an alleged stock-selling scheme pleaded innocent today in federal court. They were William T. Campbell of Bradley Beach, Bernard Cannon of Philadelphia and Harry A. Newsum of New Paltz, N. Y.

Two others, Camden Coburn, an inmate of Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary, and John P. Ford of New York, pleaded guilty.

The United States attorney's office said the men promoted sales for land at Elberon, Monmouth county, and Scaville Gardens, Cape May county, which they did not own.

Judge Phillip Forman did not set a trial date.

Discuss Revision Of Dairy Laws

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—State officials and dairymen met today to discuss revision of what some producers called New York's "strangling dairy laws."

The New York State dairy committee, claiming to represent 78,000 dairy farmers, will join with Governor Lehman, Lieut. Gov. Charles Poletti, Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., and several legislators in discussing a move also aimed at "uniting all dairymen to substantially reduce the cost of milk to consumers."

"We will ask our state officials and lawmakers to help us revise the present strangling dairy laws on New York's statute books," John J. Dillon, chairman of the committee said.

"We cannot solve this problem now with temporary expedients. Nor can the problem be solved by temporary or permanent government control with injury to individual rights, on which our system of government is founded," he added.

"We have therefore invited the state executives and legislators to meet with us in this conference in the hope that we may be able to find a basis for a sound dairy policy that would save both the industry and the freedom of milk producers."

Delegates will also seek a charter "with provisions and safeguards" to set up a milk system that will be controlled exclusively by dairy farmers for the benefit of both producers and consumers.

Stay Granted in Ford Murder Trial, Cases Disposed Of

Schirck Signs Order to Show Cause Why an Inspection of Grand Jury Should Not Be Had

The Charles E. Ford, murder, second degree, indictment will not be heard at the present term of County Court now being held before County Judge Frederick G. Traver. An order to show cause why an inspection of the Grand Jury minutes should not be had has been signed by Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schirck and this order is returnable before Justice Francis Bergan on February 10 at which time the matter will be argued.

Until the matter is heard and determined by Justice Bergan after the hearing on February 10 the trial is automatically stayed.

Counsel for Ford, N. LeVan Haver, announced the stay had been granted when the case was called Monday afternoon in County Court where the case appeared as number one on the criminal calendar. It had been anticipated that this action would be taken.

Ford is charged with shooting to death Harvey W. Clancey, Phoenixia Grill proprietor, in Phoenixia last fall over a disagreement over a real estate transaction. Mr. Haver and Francis Martocci appear for the defendant.

Several other cases on the criminal calendar were set down for disposition on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray. Among the cases which will be disposed of on Wednesday are a dozen so-called "gambling cases" which grow out of indictments found by the grand jury in policy slip cases. In some of these cases Fred Stang appears as counsel and Mr. Stang was in Albany on Monday and District Attorney Murray agreed to hold the cases until Wednesday.

The Weeks Trial

In the Floyd Weeks attempted murder and assault case, which has been pending in court for over three years, counsel for the defendant sought to have the case continued, but Mr. Murray said he would be ready to proceed next Monday with the disposition

The Defense Program

President Roosevelt's $552,000,000 defense program started through the congressional machinery today.

The Senate military committee assembled (at 10:30 a. m., E. S. T.) for a general discussion of the sweeping recommendations, while the similar House committee called Secretary Woodring, General Malin Craig, army chief of staff, and other army officers to explain in private their ideas on armament.

"What we want to find out first is whether the war department is prepared to proceed with the whole program from planes to material," said Chairman May (D-Ky.). "We want to know how soon they can put the program into effect."

May referred to reports that some army officials thought the air force should be increased by a minimum of 10,000 planes. Mr. Roosevelt told Congress in his special message last week it should provide for a "minimum increase of 3,000 planes."

Cleveland—Four years ago a truck struck John McGonagle, and buried him into a pile of snow, injuring a kneecap. After an operation the leg was stiff—permanently he was told.

The other day McGonagle slipped on the ice and again piled up in the snow. But this time he walked away, his lame leg functioning normally.

Big Problem

Richmond, Va.—Police today worked on a case involving larceny on a grand scale.

F. H. Boatwright reported someone had stolen one metal garage, size 20 by 12 feet.

Both Short

Salt Lake City—Motorist Frank Crane, approaching a crossing, saw a train coming and applied his brakes. The car skidded on icy pavement, careened into a pole, overturned in a ditch. Crane sustained several broken ribs, a gashed face.

The train? It stopped 50 feet before reaching the crossing.

Beggar's Choice

Tulsa, Okla.—A crew was unloading automobiles at the railroad dock and the other employees were driving them up to a motor company.

A man came up and asked: "Is this car ready?"

"Yes," someone replied.

The man got in and drove off.

Renewed Plea for Abolition Of 'Blue Ribbon' Juries

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—A renewed plea for abolition of "blue ribbon" juries was voiced today by the judicial council in its annual report to Governor Lehman and the Legislature.

The council, charged with making continuous studies of the state's judicial system and recommending changes, asserted special juries, selected from a hand-picked panel, are "distinctly un-American and not consonant with a trial by one's peers."

The council urged abolition of special juries in 1937. Blue ribbon juries have been a frequent weapon of Manhattan District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in his prosecution of racketeers.

The council also urged legislation to clarify further the right of women to serve on grand juries and laws to permit a waiver of a jury trial in criminal cases not involving the death sentence.

Senate Confirms Appointments of Mulrooney, Walsh

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—The appointments of Michael F. Walsh of Brooklyn, as secretary of state, and Edward P. Mulrooney as state correction commissioner, were confirmed unanimously today by New York's Senate.

Confirmation of other Democratic Governor Lehman's appointments to his cabinet was expected by Republican Majority Leader Perley A. Pitcher to be made within the next few days.

Approval of Mulrooney's re-nomination followed a Senate finance committee session in which the correction commissioner explained duties of his office to new senators and other Republican members of the committee.

Both Pitcher and Senator George F. Thompson, finance committee chairman, scotched reports that Mulrooney and other cabinet members had been "compelled" to appear before the committee pending confirmation of their appointments by Lehman.

"Consideration of these officers," Pitcher asserted, "gives us an opportunity to meet the cabinet members and learn of their programs."

Pitcher said Mulrooney was asked about his deletion of portions of a report on probationary activities in Kings county court and gave "a very satisfactory explanation."

"The commission explained," Pitcher said, "that portions of the report were deleted because he felt they were hearsay and not founded on sufficient evidence."

Moving confirmation of the Democratic correction commissioner, Senator Arthur Wicks, Kingston Republican, told the Senate that in appearing before the finance committee, Mulrooney "in his usual gracious manner impressed the members as a straight, honest, hard-nitting commissioner."

During the last gubernatorial campaign, Louis Waldman, American Labor party candidate for county court justice, attacked Mulrooney's alleged action in altering the report.

Walsh, successor to Edward F. Flynn, will be sworn in as secretary of state late today.

of the case. Weeks is now on bail.

It is alleged that Weeks, back on November 8, 1935, was responsible for the death of his aged uncle, Henry Weeks, aged 71. The elderly man died in the local hospital following treatment for what was termed drinking liquor in which poison was found.

In December of 1935, Weeks was indicted for attempted murder and assault. The case for various reasons never came to trial although at one term the selection of a jury was begun when Judge Traver was taken ill and the case went over.

In March, 1937, the case was re-submitted to the grand jury and that grand jury handed down a second degree murder and assault indictment as well as an attempted murder charge. In April of 1937, Weeks was unable to procure the sum of bail required and was placed in jail. Then again in January of 1938 the grand jury which had again heard the case handed up new charges of attempted murder, first degree, and assault, first degree.

Justice Schirck at that time set bail at $3,000 and on January 14, 1938, Weeks went out on bail. The case has been pending since.

Now because of illness in his family, Chris J. Flanagan and Thomas J. Plunket, counsel, asked the case to go over again, but Mr. Murray asked that the case be heard next Monday.

Because Frank Campochiaro is engaged in work in the Senate at Albany the action against Froedman Wright went over the term. The case against William R. Palen also went over because Palen is confined to the Veterans' Hospital at Bronx. The Frank Ruffa case went over because of the illness of John Wadlin. Elmer H. Nathan moved the Leonard Buri case over the term.

In the Martin Rucker case, as against Wright, a charge of assault, growing out of a transaction near New Paltz, Chris J.

Flanagan said he had been as brother of the girl, was sent to Elmira Reformatory. Eschmann is a brother-in-law.

The case of Carleton Krom went over until the first Monday of the April term on application of A. J. Cook, attorney for Krom.

Earl Finley, who was fined $200 for operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated as a second offender, was in court. He said he had been unable to pay up his fine but promised to pay at the rate of $2 a week. On his promise to continue payments he was given an extension of time until next April but warned by Judge Traver that failure to meet the payments would mean jail.

William F. Jones, who was also on parole, appeared and had his parole extended until next term of court. Jones is charged with stealing spray materials from Leslie Herring of Ulster Park, his employer. Jones was given a year in jail and sentence suspended during good behavior. Judge Traver told him that if his record was still good next term he would discharge him from parole.

John Roach, Wallkill contractor was arranged under a charge of failure to have workmen's compensation when an inspector arrived on the job. He pleaded not guilty.

Jack Glasman of Kingston, arraigned on grand larceny, second degree, charged alleged to have taken place on August 2, last, pleaded not guilty through Joseph Avis, and had bail continued. Glasman is charged with having passed a bad check in payment for merchandise. Later it is charged he agreed to make good and gave another check but it is charged that check was not honored.

George Fitzgerald of Bruyn avenue was arraigned under an indictment charging possession of policy slips in three counts and also one count of being a common gambler. Judge Joseph M. Fowler appeared for him and a plea of not guilty was entered. Fitzgerald was arrested by local police on December 13, last.

Court recessed until Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Sentence Suspended

Joseph Eschmann of Saugerties, 39 years old, charged with rape, second degree, growing out of a morals case involving a 16-year-old girl Saugerties girl, was permitted to plead to assault, second degree and was given six months in the county jail and the sentence was suspended during good behavior and he was directed to report to Probation Officer Ser-

man Wright a member of the Smith family of Saugerties who were sentenced at the last term of court on pleas of guilty. Charles Smith, father of the girl, was sent to Napanoch as a mental case. The mother, Margaret Smith, was sent to Bedford Hills on her plea of abduction of her own daughter and Charles Smith, Jr.,

In March, 1937, the case was re-submitted to the grand jury and that grand jury handed down a second degree murder and assault indictment as well as an attempted murder charge. In April of 1937, Weeks was unable to procure the sum of bail required and was placed in jail. Then again in January of 1938 the grand jury which had again heard the case handed up new charges of attempted murder, first degree, and assault, first degree.

Justice Schirck at that time set bail at $3,000 and on January 14, 1938, Weeks went out on bail. The case has been pending since.

Now because of illness in his family, Chris J. Flanagan and Thomas J. Plunket, counsel, asked the case to go over again, but Mr. Murray asked that the case be heard next Monday.

Because Frank Campochiaro is engaged in work in the Senate at Albany the action against Froedman Wright went over the term. The case against William R. Palen also went over because Palen is confined to the Veterans' Hospital at Bronx. The Frank Ruffa case went over because of the illness of John Wadlin. Elmer H. Nathan moved the Leonard Buri case over the term.

In the Martin Rucker case, as against Wright, a charge of assault, growing out of a transaction near New Paltz, Chris J.

Flanagan said he had been as brother of the girl, was sent to Elmira Reformatory. Eschmann is a brother-in-law.

The case of Carleton Krom went over until the first Monday of the April term on application of A. J. Cook, attorney for Krom.

Earl Finley, who was fined $200 for operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated as a second offender, was in court. He said he had been unable to pay up his fine but promised to pay at the rate of $2 a week. On his promise to continue payments he was given an extension of time until next April but warned by Judge Traver that failure to meet the payments would mean jail.

William F. Jones, who was also on parole, appeared and had his parole extended until next term of court. Jones is charged with stealing spray materials from Leslie Herring of Ulster Park, his employer. Jones was given a year in jail and sentence suspended during good behavior. Judge Traver told him that if his record was still good next term he would discharge him from parole.

John Roach, Wallkill contractor was arranged under a charge of failure to have workmen's compensation when an inspector arrived on the job. He pleaded not guilty.

Jack Glasman of Kingston, arraigned on grand larceny, second degree, charged alleged to have taken place on August 2, last, pleaded not guilty through Joseph Avis, and had bail continued. Glasman is charged with having passed a bad check in payment for merchandise. Later it is charged he agreed to make good and gave another check but it is charged that check was not honored.

George Fitzgerald of Bruyn avenue was arraigned under an indictment charging possession of policy slips in three counts and also one count of being a common gambler. Judge Joseph M. Fowler appeared for him and a plea of not guilty was entered. Fitzgerald was arrested by local police on December 13, last.

Court recessed until Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Sentence Suspended

Joseph Eschmann of Saugerties, 39 years old, charged with rape, second degree, growing out of a morals case involving a 16-year-old girl Saugerties girl, was permitted to plead to assault, second degree and was given six months in the county jail and the sentence was suspended during good behavior and he was directed to report to Probation Officer Ser-

man Wright a member of the Smith family of Saugerties who were sentenced at the last term of court on pleas of guilty. Charles Smith, father of the girl, was sent to Napanoch as a mental case. The mother, Margaret Smith, was sent to Bedford Hills on her plea of abduction of her own daughter and Charles Smith, Jr.,

Interesting Program For Kiwanis Luncheon

An unusually interesting program for the noon meeting of Kiwanis Thursday when the speaker will be the Rev. Stephen J. Landherr, C. S. R., of Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus. He will tell of the work being done to educate the deaf and dumb and will also demonstrate the use of the sign language.

A Kiwanian who has heard Father Landherr on a previous occasion, says that he has a rare sense of humor, does not hesitate to tell jokes on himself and during his talk gives instances of the keenness of mind and memory and accomplishments of those who can neither hear nor talk that are almost unbelievable. It is suggested that members bring with them one or two guests Thursday, with promise that the occasion will be worth while.

"How then is the best way to attract this vast traveling public? First by placing information booths at the strategic highways into Kingston, routes 8-V, 28, 32 and 209. These information booths will bear good-will emissaries of Kingston distributing free information on the World's Fair, road information and at the same time selling the visitor on the idea of our city of Kingston. Placing before him a folder in which is comprehensively described our facilities for hotels, restaurants and calling attention particularly to our historical background, the Ashokan reservoir and our very latest asset from a sightseeing standpoint, the "seal college" now in the course of completion by Mark Huling, one of the greatest trainers of seals in the world."

THE DISTRIBUTION RATES

With millions of people needing bread, delegates to the International Wheat Advisory Committee meeting in London learned that the estimated consumption during the crop year ending July 1 is only 75 per cent of the world supply. In 1937 and 1938 the consumption was 84 per cent of the supply. The Winnipeg price of wheat now is around 64 cents a bushel instead of the 1937-8 average of $1.03.

There was no lack of suggestions for meeting the situation. Australia's delegate suggested shifting the dietary emphasis away from breads and cereals to vegetables, but was immediately reminded that consumption in some countries was already dangerously low. France, for example, finds its people eating too little bread, possibly because some cannot afford to buy as much as they need. Some other delegate suggested emphasizing dairy products, so that there would be bigger cattle herds and more of the grain could be fed them. He, in turn, was reminded of the danger of developing an over-supply of beef cattle and creating a problem in that field.

Is there really no answer to such problems? Are human beings really not intelligent enough to distribute their surpluses of food and clothes and goods to the millions throughout the world who haven't enough of anything, and bring a decent profit to those who grow and manufacture them?

ITALY'S CASE

Italy, in spite of its Fascist aims, has a case for some of Mussolini's demands. Take the Suez Canal, for instance. It is a French corporation. Great Britain holds the biggest block of stock, nearly half, valued at about half a billion dollars. She is said to get dividends of 600 francs on shares representing an original investment of only 250 francs. Evidently the canal was overcapitalized and has been skimming too much cream off the traffic it carries.

The situation is ruining Italy, which has to use the canal in going to and from Ethiopia with troops and freight. It costs $1.43 a ton for every trip. That is genteel burglary. Such a channel should be operated as a public utility, charging a fair toll rate instead of piling on all the traffic will bear. The Panama Canal, which cost more to build and is more expensive to operate, charges much less per ton.

Something is to be said, too, for Italy's claim in Tunisia, where Italian and French populations are nearly equal and France merely has a protectorate. Also for the seaport and railroad terminal of Djibouti, which as matters stand today is needed more by Italy than by France, to serve the Ethiopian hinterland. Americans, of course, say Italy has no legitimate business in Ethiopia, but France has recognized her conquest.

The logic of the situation seems to call for some concessions in these matters by Britain and France, sooner or later, for the sake of peace. They properly hold out, however, as long as possible, because the dictators have been committing burglary and levying blackmail.

CHINA'S UNCLOSED DOOR

An ancient caravan trail used by the Great Khan and followed once by Marco Polo has now become China's principal channel for trade with the rest of the world. United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson traveled over it recently in an American car and found it excellent and very busy.

When Japan slammed China's front door, to keep the Chinese in and their friends out, the government turned toward its western land routes. There are three. Those into Soviet Siberia and French Indo-China are of little use.

The third is the road into Burma. It is 2,100 miles long, goes through mountain passes 2,000 feet high and passes through Mandalay down to Rangoon. The ambassador reports it a miracle of construction by methods older than those of ancient Rome.

Tens of thousands of Chinese coolies built it, not with modern highway machinery but with bullock carts and rollers carved from the solid native stone. They did the Chinese section of it in eight months, and did it so well that heavy trucks carrying munitions roll along it easily from the coast to China's present capital at Chungking. Japanese bombing planes do not molest them for the route, about 1,000 miles from their aviation bases, lies over dangerous mountain country and in a region of seasonal heavy rainfall.

Here is one answer to China's problem and one reason for its continued resistance to the invaders.

FIGHTING PLANES

The new American defense program, which proposes to spend half a billion dollars more on armament, chiefly warplanes, seems to have aroused conflicting emotions in Europe. A dispatch from London says it was greeted with "cheers and jeers."

The cheers were from the democracies and the jeers from the autocracies. Italian Fascists were reported as asking ironically "whom President Roosevelt plans to fight."

Nobody, we hope. Most Americans probably feel that a preparedness of the sort proposed will lessen the danger of having to fight. It is military insurance.

The situation serves as a reminder of another period in American history, when foreign danger threatened and Uncle Sam began putting himself on a defensive footing. Our people were singing then:

"We don't want to fight; but by jingo, if we do,
We've got the men, we've got the ships,
We've got the money, too."

That same London dispatch says the nations over there are envying us because we are "strong and rich enough to contemplate such a special program."

EPILEPSY AND FEEBLE MINDEDNESS

It was thought for many years that epilepsy caused feeble mindedness notwithstanding the fact that many brilliant individuals were or had been subject to epileptic attacks. Many physicians felt that those few brilliant men were just exceptions to the rule.

It is also a fact that among those of poor intellect (those below normal mentally) there is a greater proportion of epileptics.

What about epileptics who are normal mentally? Are they likely to gradually lose some of this mentality and become subnormal?

A most interesting study of epilepsy and mentality is recorded in the American Journal of Orthopsychiatry by three Boston research workers, Drs. Merrill Moore, C. R. Atwell, and A. Louise Collins. There were 229 epileptics examined during the period 1916-1936. They are believed to be a fair cross section of the epileptic portion of the community.

The tests included speed and accuracy with which simple sums were done or questions answered, memory, mental speed, speech, reasoning, judgment, comprehension or understanding and others.

What did these research workers find after an examination of 229 cases during a period of 20 years?

In cases where the intelligence was below normal this below normal condition was not due to the epilepsy but because the patients were mentally below normal anyway and happened to have epilepsy also.

They found also that the individual below normal mentally is more likely to develop epilepsy than one who is normal. "The effect of epilepsy is greatest in those who are below normal anyway; they have less resistance to the effects of the attacks than have those of normal or higher mental ability."

Another interesting finding was that the length of time the patient had been afflicted with epilepsy did not seem to make much difference in the effects of the epilepsy on his mental power.

I believe the fact that epilepsy does not to any extent, affect the mentality of one who is normal mentally, as shown by this thorough examination, should greatly relieve the minds of many patients and their families.

Chapter 29
Visit to Claiborne

"MR. FEIGEL wants you to call him on the Coast immediately."

The message came to Noel next day from the New York office. Feigel's probably furious at me, Noel thought as she followed the New York office's suggestion and put in the call for Hollywood. And he was, as soon as he spoke with her.

"Why didn't you stay here, like I told you to?" he asked impatiently.

"I thought you'd forgotten about me," Noel explained half-heartedly. She didn't seem to understand it—the waiting in Hollywood when everything was so uncertain.

"Come out—at once!" Feigel's voice was arrogant. "Take the next plane here. We'll sign the contract when you arrive."

"The test was satisfactory then?" Noel's hopes rose.

"Well, so-so," came the non-committal comment. "But we'll be able to do things with you." Then he added casually, "We've bought the screen rights to 'Susan is Waiting.' Maybe we can fix it so you'll play the part you did on the stage."

"I'd like that," Noel told him, trying not to make her voice sound too elated. She was excited—playing Susan would be perfect for her.

"The boys in New York will get busy right away," Feigel went into plans immediately. "Do what they tell you—they know their business."

"Their business," as Noel discovered almost at once, was keeping her occupied for the next ten hours. Bill Smith of the publicity department was at her hotel an hour after her telephone conversation with Feigel. He took her to a photographer, had dozens of poses made—the proofs were to be rushed through immediately.

There was a meeting with eastern executives at the Ambassador. And a few special interviews with writers from the papers and fan magazines.

All the while Noel was thinking: They're funny people, this movie crowd. I haven't signed the contract yet. That did seem very businesslike to her. Douglas would have had her name on the dotted line first.

"What about your romance with David Norris?" one of the interviewers asked Noel.

Noel's face showed her resentment. Feigel interrupted quickly. "That's all imaginary, wasn't it, Miss Marchand?" He smiled knowingly at the reporter.

Feigel evidently changed his mind frequently. From "taking the first plane," Noel found herself busy for several days, at the whims and schemes of the New York office.

"We're leaving tomorrow," Bill Smith said casually one morning as though he were telling Noel, "You're having luncheon with an interviewer."

It was then, as soon as Smith left, Noel called Claiborne. She'd been wanting to do it ever since her return to New York. She would say good-bye to Mrs. Marchand, that's what she told herself. Only fate and the Criterion crowd knew when she'd be East again.

"Noel!" Mrs. Marchand's voice was affectionately berating her for the long absence. "We didn't know where to reach you—why didn't you let us know?"

"I should have," Noel was penitent. After all, she had treated this good friend shabbily. "I'm going out to Hollywood tomorrow," she explained. "I'll be working there at the Criterion Studios." She hesitated, then added regretfully, "I'm sorry I won't have time to see you first."

"Wait a moment," Mrs. Marchand interrupted. "Allan wants to speak to you."

Noel stood there, her heart beating strangely, the receiver trembling in her hand. Through the brief interval of silence at the other end, she waited breathlessly—longing to hear his voice, yet dreading the conversation.

"Hello, Noel," Allan was speaking. "What's this I hear about your going to California?"

"Tomorrow," Noel replied. "I've got to see you before that." Allan's voice was pleadingly insistent. "I'd come right down to New York, Noel—but I'm not completely over the accident yet." His voice was lower. "I've missed you terribly, Noel."

Noel decided at once. "Perhaps I could run out to Claiborne—Feigel's own common sense was telling her. Why punish yourself?"

"This afternoon?" Noel agreed and after his "Good-bye, dear," she wouldn't let herself remember she had no right to go there.

Without notifying Bill Smith she made inquiries about trains to Claiborne. There was one in an hour. Carefully she dressed for the trip, wearing the lovely dark blue silk suit she'd bought for her arrival in Hollywood. A crisp lace and organdie blouse fell in graceful folds from a low neckline. Her smart blue hat with the nose veil gave a mysterious shade to her eyes.

Noel had a sense of foreboding

Messages From Executive Branch are Devoted To Better Methods of Administering Federal Affairs.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, Jan. 17.—This begins to look like an era of administrative reform. Nearly every message that comes from the executive branch of the government these days to Congress and some of the reports that are being made public by congressional committees are devoted to better methods of administering the affairs of the federal government.

Impatient critics may wonder why so many simple changes are only just now being offered, but anything so unwieldy as the federal government structure is not readily transformed. Thus, the President's executive order creating a federal real estate board to make comprehensive record of just what property the federal government holds and its relationship to taxation problems in local communities has long been needed, but it is only one of a number of things that get sidetracked in an era of social reform.

Take the social security message of the President, which now embodies the suggestions of a non-partisan board which has been studying the law's operations for several months with experts thoroughly familiar with the subject. The suggested changes, such as the insistence of a merit system among the states which administer the law, might seem to be A-B-C and fundamental, but it was not one of the needs foreseen when the act was passed.

It is a curious commentary on present-day affairs in Washington that, while "spending" is decrying, the plans for increasing the federal government's paternalism go on apace, and no political group is strong enough to call a halt. The President's message asks for liberalizing of old age insurance payments, especially in the early years of the system, and the paying of supplementary benefits to the aged dependent wives of retired workers. All this, another recommendation will increase the total expense, which is to be met by higher and higher payroll taxes.

Yet the Republican party, which was given a larger membership in the House and Senate at the last elections, presumably because of the protest of the nation against "spending," contains a large number of members who have pledged themselves to work for higher and higher pension payments.

Recognition of the problem of old age pensions and unemployment insurance has been ingrained in the platforms of both major parties, and the payroll taxes are here to stay. The economic effect, or rather the impact of such taxes on the whole economic system, being reflected in higher and higher production costs and in a withdrawal of considerable sums from the stream of purchasing power, cannot but be of increasing significance. The Congress is nevertheless prepared to go along with the amendments to the social security law because President Roosevelt has made it unpopular politically to do otherwise.

These realities are being faced by Congress, but the trend is to make sure that whatever sums are distributed go to the persons who are deserving and that efficiency of administration is attained. So the emphasis quite naturally is being placed now on the problem of personnel and on the question of equitable distribution of the burden.

The suggestion that states with low per capita income be given a larger share of federal aid than states with the average or better than average per capita income is one which is likely to be vigorously debated in Congress, but, broadly speaking, that's what the federal government has been doing with all tax moneys; indeed, there has been no yardstick of measurement for federal grants. The discretionary power of federal agencies to spend public funds in accordance with political or group pressure has been unrestrained. Some formula to measure federal grants to states on the basis of population and state income is at least a start toward a more scientific or uniform formula of federal disbursement of moneys collected from the taxpayers.

If now, in this new era of administrative reform, there is developed some equitable system of levying taxes so as not to retard the processes of production or to choke the price structure, but actually to provide incentives for increasing production and business volume, there would be less concern about some of the additions to those parts of the social security

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 75—L. Boardman

The steamboat which we consider in this article may not be known to some who read this as the "L. Boardman"; rather she might be remembered much better by the name "River Belle," the banner under which she served her last days on the Hudson river. Besides these two names, she was also called the "Cricket," her original name, and she was originally a passenger steamboat, then changed to a towboat, and finally converted back into a passenger carrier before her career was ended.

The "L. Boardman," christened in the beginning as the "Cricket," was a 135-foot wooden hull vessel built in New York in 1848. She had a breadth of beam of 21 feet, a net tonnage of 100 tons, and was powered with a vertical beam engine.

As can be ascertained from the rating of 60 tons net, the "L. Boardman" was a small-size passenger steamboat, and in her early days she was used on almost every route within a short distance of New York. Her first appearance was in service on the Norwalk route.

One night as the "L. Boardman" was lying at the dock, foot of Catherine street, East River, she caught fire and was badly damaged. After repairs were made, she was placed in service on the Shrewsbury route where she remained for some time.

In 1850 the "L. Boardman," or "Cricket," was running in eastern waters, out of the Connecticut river with landings in Shelter Island, Greenport, and Sag Harbor. A year later she was plying between Norwalk and the Connecticut river.

The "Cricket" was then purchased by parties from the Hudson river district and her name was changed to the "L. Boardman." Following a short period of service on the Hudson, she was sold to a Mr. Cray who had her guards cut off and fitted her for a Sandy Hook towboat under the command of Captain Marshall. This latter change was brought about after the close of the Civil War in 1865.

Later the "L. Boardman," now a towboat, was again purchased by those interested in navigation on the Hudson river, and she was rebuilt into a passenger carrying vessel for the second time—her name being changed to the "River Belle." Two years later the "River Belle" was running on the East river.

Finally, in 1893, the "River Belle" was sold to Captain Black of Catskill who operated her as a ferry boat between Catskill and Albany. In the spring of the following year, 1894, she was placed on the route between Newburgh and Haverstraw, replacing the steamboat "Emeline" on this route.

On March 31, the "River Belle" left Newburgh on her regular trip to Haverstraw. When opposite Fort Montgomery at four o'clock in the afternoon, she sprung a leak and began settling rapidly. The crew and passengers took to the life boats and 10 minutes later the "River Belle" went to the bottom in 125 feet of water.

The following April the "River Belle" was raised by the Chapman Wrecking Company of New York who towed her to Hoboken, N. J., and beached her on the mud flats, where she slowly went to pieces.

Stunning Slip Covers Are Easy to Make

Your Chair Is Your Pattern! Crisp, colorful new slip covers—how they brighten your rooms for spring! And you can make them at home easily, inexpensively.

The smart slip cover in your picture is a plaid in pretty shades of gray, the seams are gaily outlined with yellow moss trimming. Striking, too, is plain beige with rust moss—four your bedroom—dove gray and orchid moss.

And you can quickly make this cover—or any other style—this simple pin-on way.

Smooth the material over the chair—wrong side out if you use moss trimming. Work from the top of the back to the front of the seat and allow 3 or 4 inches for a tuck-in between back and seat.

Then pin along the top and seams. Cut while the material is still pinned to the chair, leaving 1½ inches outside pins for seams—as our sketch shows. The arms, back, sides and skirt you fit separately.

How to trim, finish, make plaques! Every step in the making of slip covers—from estimating material to finishing—is clearly explained and diagrammed in our 32-page booklet. Directions for box-pleated flounces, tips on color schemes, fabrics.

Send 10 cents in coin for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave. New York N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Indian's Head Is Found
GALLIPOLIS, OHIO.—The chiseled outline of an Indian's head and feather headdress have been discovered on a rock cliff at "Vander's Point," home of Homer W. Walker, president of the Gallipolis chamber of commerce.

The head came to light after rains had washed silt and moss away from the face of the rock. Evidence of a former Indian village which has been found in a nearby cave has yielded many arrowheads, stone axes and other stone tools.

The Ohio Archeological and Historical society will attempt to determine the authenticity of the head, it is said.

MODES of the MOMENT

Add intidotes to midwinter wardrobe blues. A clown's hat wrapped in a single uncarved ostich plume of rich violet-blue. It sets a splash of color above a simple black cierge afternoon frock, worn with pearls and a silver fox scarf.

Baptist Men's Club Entertains

Monday evening the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Men's Club was host to the members of the Fair Street Church Club at a ladies' night. There was a large turnout and in an opening game of darts between the Baptist Church women and the Fair Street women the Baptist team won by a wide margin. After the Fair Street men's team had lost to the Albany Avenue Church team in a second game, the women from both churches combined to smother the men's team which graciously went down to defeat under the captaincy of William Newkirk, despite superior playing by several members including Joe Turner who made a home-run. Refreshments were served

The golfer stepped up to the tee and drove off. The ball sailed straight down the fairway, leaped into the green and rolled into the hole. The golfer threw his club in the air and yelled: "I did it! I did it! I did it!"

Wally—Gee, Dad, there's a man in the circus who jumps on a horse's back, slips underneath, catches hold of his tail, and finishes up on the horse's head.

Father—That's easy. I did all that the first time I rode a horse.

No matter how full of fish the lake may be, the man who forges his bait will have no occasion to warm his pan.

Judge (gravely)—So you deceived your husband?

Wife—On the contrary, your honor, he deceived me. He said he was going out of town and he didn't go.

No live—if you can—that you will have something to which to look forward besides an old age pension.

Little Bobby—Auntie, why do you put powder on your face?

Auntie—To make me pretty, dear.

Little Bobby (thinking a moment)—Auntie, perhaps you're not using the right powder.

Fame is fine for dress-up occasions but it is usually the wear of overalls who puts more food on the pantry shelves.

Judge—Can't this case be settled out of court?

Kelly—Sure. That's what we were trying to do, your honor, when the police interfered.

Peace, like charity, should begin at home.

Husband—So you think there are times when it is permissible for the husband to kiss the cook?

Wife—Yes, darling, when the wife is doing the cooking.

Read it or not—Dancing, drinking, and kissing are banned on the Japanese screen.

Chief—Do you believe in life after death?

Office Boy—Yes, sir.

Chief—Then everything is in order. After you had gone out for your grandfather, yesterday to, my your grandfather, he came in here to see you.

Woman has better business sense than man. . . . When her address is to catch a man, she doesn't sit around cussing the President. She spends half her time in beauty parlors and the other half where eligible men are to be found.

Hotel Clerk—Is this $100 bill the smallest you have?

Departing Guest—I'm afraid it is.

Clerk (to bellboy)—Here, take this out and get some relief work to change it.

HOLLYWOOD—Harry Langdon is the luckiest man in Hollywood—and the most grateful.

His career as a top-flight comedian has been dead and done for 10 years or more. Suddenly the fates have tossed into his lap a chance to bring it back to life. It's like working on borrowed time.

Langdon, famed on the silent screen as a round-faced, wistful-eyed, dead-pan comic star, today is a middle-aged man, a little heavier about the jaws and paunch, a lot wiser—and happier too, he says—than in the days of his reckless, free-spending stardom.

FROM vaudeville headliner to movie comedian was an easy, lucrative jump for Langdon in the silent days. Three years at Mack Sennett's were so profitable that he formed his own company to make features—and that was his downfall.

"I had to turn out a feature in 10 weeks, where Chaplin and Harold Lloyd were spending up to two years on each of theirs," he recalls. "It couldn't be done—the public quickly tired of the character, and there I was, in '29—out. I'm not the type who could make good as his own producer. The responsibility got me down. I finally said, 'Oh, nuts! That's the way I always was. In vaudeville I couldn't rest till I got to the top, and then I didn't care about it.'"

After his "collapse" in 1929, Langdon went back to short comedies, tried writing, appeared briefly in a feature with Melvyn, but never regained his old prominence. He had a job with Stan Laurel, writing "gags" for the Laurel and Hardy pictures, when Stan split with his boss, Hal Roach, and Langdon, appearing anonymously, had been greeted warmly by previewers of another Roach comedy, "There Goes My Heart," and he was the logical choice for a Hardy partner.

THE picture is "It's Spring Again," and Langdon is away from his old comedy character—and away from the Laurel and Hardy routines too. The battered hat and oversized shoes he used in vaudeville and earlier pictures are stowed away in a closet.

"If I click in this," he says, "I hope I can just ride along. I never want another build-up. They talk about coming back to the top—I'm tired of the top. I'm happy. My wife (his third) and I get along fine, we have a fine 4-year-old boy, and, well, everything's right. When I'd given up all hope of a comeback, can you wonder that I'm grateful?"

Advice to the young actor? "Save your money!"

Senate Confirms Frankfurter

armament plans. Rep. Youngdahl (R-Miss.) said in a radio address last night that Mr. Roosevelt had created "a smoke screen of war hysteria and armament spending to cover up the failures of his administration."

Old Age Insurance

Recommendations for liberalizing the government's old age insurance system apparently opened the way today for abandonment of plans to accumulate a vast old age reserve fund.
While the Social Security Board made no specific financing suggestions—leaving those up to Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury—it explained that if its proposals for enlarged and earlier payments of benefits were adopted by Congress, "early payments under the system will increase substantially."
This would automatically cut down the amount of social security tax revenues available for building up a reserve fund, but would permit accumulation of a comparatively small contingency fund.
Some experts have estimated that the reserve fund contemplated under the present law would amount to about $47,000,000 by 1930. The contingency fund possible under the board's proposed changes, it was reliably stated, probably would be $5,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000.

There was no indication as to the attitude of Secretary Morgenthau toward abandoning the big reserve plan. It originally was enacted at his suggestion. Republican critics, especially Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) have charged that he was interested principally in using it as a "cushion" for the growing federal debt.

French Launch Battleship

Brest, France, Jan. 17 (AP)—France kept pace with the world's speeding armaments race by launching today a 35,000-ton super battleship and laying the keel for another. The twin ceremonies came as France glided to oppose Italian demands for French colonial possessions and showed concern for her Mediterranean communications because of insurgent victories added by Italian troops in Spain. The battleship which was floated was the Richelieu, expected to join the fleet in 1940. The other will be called the Clemenceau.

Railroads and Steel Featured

Two of the country's leading industries—the railroads and steel—were featured in yesterday's news. Just as it seemed that a sweeping revision of the railroad bankruptcy law, approved by the presidential rail committee and by pending legislation, was in sight, large institutional holders of railroad bonds have come forward and thrown the weight of their influence against such revision and specifically against the move to establish a special U. S. Court for reorganizations. Further, objection is made to the proposals made by the roads that legislation be passed to facilitate voluntary plans for capital re-adjustment.
An official system of regional wage differentials in the steel industry is now in force as the Labor Department yesterday issued its final order establishing minimum wages in the industry on government contracts. Acting under the Walsh Healey Act the Public Contract Board two months ago made recommendations on minimum wages in the industry. Under the ruling the northern steel-making area is divided into five regions with minimum wages running from 58 1/2 cents an hour in the mid-west to 62 1/2 cents an hour in the east and north central areas. The southern area rate stands at 45 cents an hour. Steel officials expect the decision to affect rates very little. It is estimated that only about seven per cent of the workers come under the minimum wage rate and of these a large majority are already receiving the minimums established. The other 93 per cent of the workers receive more than the minimum set. Mostly the decision will affect the smaller producers.
Steel operations this week are scheduled at 52.7 per cent of capacity, an increase of one point over last week.
The market was dull and inconclusive yesterday with volume at 670,000 shares compared with $40,000 Friday. Final prices were around Saturday's closing figures. Industrials remained unchanged at 148 1/2 in the Dow-Jones averages; rails were off 0.27 point, to 31.68 and utility averages just showed a gain, being up 0.01 point to 23.50. Commodities were irregular with an undertone of firmness. With small trading cotton futures drifted lower, closing with declines of one to 13 points. There was inquiry for textiles, particularly silk and rayon goods.
Loose-Wiles Hecat Co. declared a dividend of 25 cents on common, same as paid November 1. Home Insurance Co. declared a quarterly of 25 cents and extra of 15 cents. Shattuck-Dunn Mining Corp. declared 12 1/2 cents; last previous payment was 25 cents on December 24, 1937.
United Cigar-Whelan Stores Corp. has purchased the chain of 1 Best Drug Stores in Southern California.
Employees will share 80 per cent and stockholders 20 per cent in a special profit account set up by the George A. Hornel & Co. at its Austin, Minn., plant. The plan is being tried out in the fiscal year ending next October.
The Pennsylvania Railroad will recondition and streamline 100 passenger coaches at its Altoona, Pa., works. The work will cost approximately $2,500,000.
Commonwealth & Southern plans to spend around $33,000,000 on new construction in 1939. Actual outlay in 1938 was $34,777,000. The major outlay will be in the system's northern properties. Nothing but the most necessary work is taken up in the southern territory because of the condition caused by TVA competition.

Hasbrouck of Albany, Secretary of the New York State Osteopathic Society, from Commissioner Carroll E. Mealy. ## Kingston High vs. Liberty At the Auditorium Tonight

The most important game of the early season schedule in the DUSO Basketball League comes off tonight at the municipal auditorium when undefeated Kingston High School stacks up against the once-beaten Liberty crew. Starting time of the main attraction is 8:15. At 7 o'clock Dick Whiston's Jayvees will be billed against another formidable junior quintet of this section.

Coming to Kingston tonight will be same school that defeated the powerful Kiamen during the last campaign by the score of 33 to 27. However, the spunky tribe will be without the services of the experienced men who had a part in the conquest. Only Hasbrouck will be back to help out his team in what promises to be the three star show of the season. Hasbrouck gleamed eight points in that Liberty triumph last year, the only team to accomplish this feat in many a season.

Besides witnessing the team which defeated Kingston last year, the fans will have an opportunity to glance at the efforts of one "Yutch" Meadow, the so-called meat ticket for the scheduled game. Meadow, only a freshman in scholastic ranking has been the topic since the season got under way last December. And judging from advance notes from Liberty and other league cities, this boy is a natural.

Meadow opened his DUSO career in fine style by swishing the cords for 17 markers, pacing his club to a top-sided victory over Newburgh by 41-17. Against Middletown two weeks ago "Yutch" continued his scoring parade with 19 more chukkers. All of this should tell what kind of a scoring hawk this fellow really is.

Right now the Liberty contingent is the No. 1 contender to Kingston, winner in four straight battles. The Kiamen will still retain the first place notch even if they drop this encounter to Liberty but in the Kingston camp there is no great worry.

Starting line-ups:

Kingston	Liberty
Shultis	LF Meadow
Flowers	RF Hasbrouck
Van Buren	C Austin
Murphy	LG Crook
Dubin	RG Allotta

Other Games

Other DUSO League tilts tonight will bring together Middletown vs. Ellenville, Monticello vs. Port Jervis. Middletown and Port are heavy favorites to win.

Maranville and
Evers Pair Up
For Albany Title

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Johnny Evers and Walter (Rabbit) Maranville reunited today—paired again in organized baseball as they were 25 years ago.

Amid "get acquainted" smokers given by fans, the pair mapped plan to work together this year to bring a pennant to the Albany club in the Eastern League.

Evers as vice president, Maranville as manager.

The same "go get 'em" spirit prevailed as when they became teammates in 1914 on the famed Boston Braves, which started the baseball world by coming from nowhere to win the National League flag and then grab the world's series in four straight games.

Scout Hopes for Good Rookie Crop

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP)—Johnny Nee, talent scout for the New York Yankees these 14 years, today expressed hope for a good crop of baseball rookies.

"This should be a good year," said the veteran who played 29 years in the minors before being signed to the Yankee scouting staff by the late Miller Huggins.

"They seem to be a lot of dozen we send up every year in cycles. Most of them are good but only a few are good enough to make the team."

Nee said the business of scouting was getting more complicated each year, and blamed free hitting and the baseball farm system for the complications.

Time was when you looked for a pitcher who could pitch, he said, but today the pitcher must hit almost equally well with the outfielders if he is to be of full value to his team.

One Stroke Worth
$1,200 to Metz

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP)—One stroke was worth $1,200 to Dick Metz, Chicago golf professional, when he beat Ernest J. Harrison of Oak Park, Ill., in an 18-hole playoff for first money in the third annual Oakland $5,000 open tournament yesterday.

Metz carded a 69, one below par for the Sequoyah course, while Harrison came in with a 70.

The two pros were tied with 274 each when the tournament was supposed to have wound up Sunday, necessitating an extra round. For five days' work the Oak Park shotmaker collected $750.

Metz was out in 34, one below par and came home on the last night with a 35. Harrison shot 55 on both nines.

Nibble Hanover
Heads Trotters

Goshen, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Nibble Hanover, the winter book favorite, heads the 45 notable three-year-old trotters still eligible for the $40,000 Hambletonian, which will have its 13th renewal over Good Time Park's triangular track here in August.

Light harness horse racing's richest stake drew one more entry than last year, when the owners paid by January 1 the $250 necessary to keep each trotter eligible. The payment brought the total paid to date on each horse to $460 with an additional $500 due the day before the race.

Nibble Hanover, champion juvenile of 1935 with a record of 2:02½ established in the Kentucky Futurity, is owned by Dunbar Postwick and his sister, Mrs. Ogden Phillips of Old Westbury, Long Island. Postwick is personally supervising the conditioning of the offspring of Calumet, which he paid $2,000 to buy as a yearling, and probably will handle the reins himself in the big race.

Six other trotters also were kept eligible for the buggy whip derby.

These include Peter Astra, who hung up a record of 2:02½ against time at Pinehurst in the fall; E. Roland Harriman's Bagpiper of Arden, N. Y.; Lyrille from Hobby Horse Farm of Hills, Va., who beat Peter Astra; Belmont Hanover, Clay Hamilton

Not Worrying
About President

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, headed south today without signing up his most famous pitcher—Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States.

"I'm not worrying," said Griffith. "He'll be out there throwing the first ball. If we didn't have any more pitching problems than him, we'd be set."

Three months from today, Griffith's going to count heavily on the President to make the first pitch of the 1939 baseball season. It will be Mr. Roosevelt's seventh annual start.

Player Prices, Salaries Climbed In Ruppert Era

By The AP Feature Service

Colonel Jacob Ruppert, late owner of the Yankees, was perhaps the first millionaire to turn to baseball as a hobby. And the thrill and prestige he derived from the game caused other men of wealth to toss fortunes into baseball in recent years primarily for the sporting purpose of producing a winner. Profit was secondary with Colonel Jake and he spent recklessly to buy players who would bring him championships. William Wrigley of Chicago's Cubs, Tom Yawkey of Boston's Red Sox and Walter Briggs of Detroit's Tigers are other wealthy sportsmen who followed Ruppert into baseball.

The high sale prices, big salaries and holdouts of recent years also can be traced to the Yankee brownmaster. Back in 1919 Ruppert paid the Boston Red Sox the then fabulous sum of $125,000 for Babe Ruth. Later years saw many players sold for around $100,000, while Yawkey paid $250,000 for Joe Cronin.

of Babe Ruth's huge pay spread. Athletes gathered new ideas of their own worth as Babe's check rose and rose until it reached $80,000 in 1930-31.

Following Babe's lead dozens of the players adopted holdout tactics in the spring. There had been previous holdouts, snubbing holdouts, but the strategy of the holdout as a publicity stunt as well as a lever to force larger salaries came from Ruth.

Both players and club owners discovered the publicity value of holdout maneuvers as Ruth and Ruppert claimed thousands of sport page columns through their annual disagreements. And the happy picture of the Babe and the Colonel finally reaching an amicable understanding, generally signing a contract under the Florida palms, is familiar to every sport addict.

While intensely interested in and personally acquainted with most of the Yankee players, Ruppert left the operation of the club strictly to his managers, Miller Huggins and later Joe McCarthy, and the business director, Ed Barrow, and backed them unreservedly in their every act.

Louis-Lewis
May Be Sellout

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Tickets for the Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis championship fight at the Garden a week from Wednesday night are, on the word of Promoter Mike Jacobs, selling so fast that Mike is beginning to suspect he should have waited and staged the thing outdoors. He says it looks like it might overflow the Garden.

If Mike is anywhere near right about it, this is a nice tribute that the customers are paying to a couple of negro boys who have been close friends and billy for several years. When the match was first announced there were many capable observers who thought maybe Mike had at last tumbled one.

Even if Joe and John Henry had been sworn enemies it still would have looked like a gamble, for there never before had been a heavyweight championship fight between negroes in this country. But Joe and John Henry admitted from the start that they were friends, and they have stuck doggedly to their mutual regard all through the weeks of training.

What Is Your News I. Q.?

By The AP Feature Service

Each question counts 20—each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair, 80, good.

1. This is The Berghof. Where is it and how does it figure in the news?
2. How much did President Roosevelt say would be required for the new budget?
3. Is Bryan Grover (a) the Englishman who flew to Russia for his wife, (b) head of the New York world's fair, or (c) the real name of Pitcher "Lefty" Grove?
4. How did Spanish Loyalists meet the insurgent offensive against Barcelona?
5. What congressional post is held by William B. Bankhead of Alabama? By Sam Rayburn of Texas?

National Guard to Hold Convention

More than 500 officers of National Guard units throughout the state, including a number from local companies, will attend the annual convention of the New York National Guard Association at Syracuse, Friday and Saturday, January 20 and 21.

Among those from First Battalion Headquarters Battery and Battery A, 156th Field Artillery of this city planning to attend are: Capt. Charles N. Behrens, Capt. Ernest A. Stauding, Lieut. Frederick Combs, Lieut. Harold V. Clayton, Lieut. Robert Reindell, and Lieut. Thomas Flynn.

Heading the list of distinguished speakers who will address the convention will be Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the Second Corps Area, who will be the principal speaker at the convention dinner Friday night. General Drum, who assumed command of the First Army and Second Corps Area on November 7, is the only living officer who has served as chief of staff of an American army in actual battle.

Following America's entry into the World War, General Drum was selected by General Pershing as one of the small group of officers to accompany him to France on the S. S. Baltic to assist in the preparation of plans for the organization, reception and training of the American forces. He assisted in formulating the basic plans for the A. E. F., including the organization, supply and transportation systems, school and training projects, tactical doctrines, active operations for the American Army, priority shipping of both men and material, the actual training and equipping of troops and other less extensive plans.

Another Attempt to Flood Tennis Courts

Sidney Lutzin, director of recreation, said this morning that another attempt will be made to flood the tennis courts at Hasbrouck and Forsyth Parks so that a skating rink may be made for the skaters of the city. Earlier in the year an attempt was made, but the courts had no sooner been flooded than the warm wave set in.

With the present colder weather another attempt will be made. Following the snow storm of Friday night and Saturday there is now excellent skating at both Hasbrouck and Lawton Parks and many are taking advantage of the sport.

Clay Grandchild Dead
New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—Capt. Thomas Jacob Clay, 85, of Lexington, Ky., last surviving grandchild of Henry Clay, died yesterday at Memorial Hospital after a long illness.
